The boys got their first trophy and we are sure it won't be the last.

Governor Cites Army Wife

TACOMA, WASHINGTON--An Army wife who devotes a significant part of her life to volunteer work, was recently recognized by Governor Daniel J. Evans as an outstanding representative of the community volunteer effort in the Tacoma area and was presented a certificate in ceremonies held in the state capitol.

Long interested in working with young people, Mrs. Doris Rountree wife of a Madigan Army Medical Center soldier heard about Tacoma's Juvenile Parole Services (JPS) agency while attending a social services class at Tacoma Community College in early 1972. Her first volunteer service was as a one-to-one "Big Sister" to two girls in correctional institutions.

She later became a liaison worker for the JPS' Learning Center, working with school-age children who couldn't adapt to the traditional school system. Mrs. Rountree's duties include acting as a liaison between her JPS students and the courts, parole officers, and caseworkers.

"Most of these kids have trouble relating to authority, so they're placed here as an alternative to going through the traditional school system. I try to be a friend to them, give them someone they can relate to, and try to reach them before they hit the big institutions," said Mrs. Rountree.

Mrs. Rountree plans to graduate this August with a degree in Sociology, and hopes to work as a juvenile parole officer before going on to work on a master's degree. Her husband William is assigned to Madigan Army Medical Center's Department of Radiology and also attends the University of Puget Sound.

MEDITATION

Experience is not what happens to a man. It is what a man does with what happens to him.

Aldous Huxley, English biologist.

Dreams Do Come True

Last Saturday, before a not-too-large but appreciative audience, the Tacoma City Association of Colored Women's Clubs burned the mortgage on their four-year old club house. Officiation at the ceremonies were Mayor Gordon Johnston; Reverend Robert Davis of Bethlehem Baptist Church; Mrs. Eliza Champ McCabe, pioneer club woman and founder of the Association; Mrs. Clara Cox, the Association's president; Mrs. Bertie Edwards and Mrs. Theresa Hayes.

When Mrs. McCabe touched the flame from a candle to the mortgage the City Association had attained a goal that was set some 20 years before. In 1954 the organization contracted to purchase nine lots and a three-room house at 2316 South Yakima Avenue. The house was small, in need of repairs and not very attractive. But for many years it was used as a meeting place for various organizations and for holding various community activities. With the acquisition of that little house the Association had taken the first step in its plan to build a larger, more attractive and adequate clubhouse - a building that could be used for a variety of worthwhile community activities.

In 1963 the Association made the final payment on the old clubhouse and celebrated the event with a simple mortgage burning ceremony at Miles Memorial Church. The organization thus has the unique distinction of having burned two mortgages on the same piece of property in a little over ten years.

Ground was broken for the new clubhouse on February 16, 1969. Construction was started in December of the same year. On June 14, 1970, Governor Dan Evans dedicated the new building and a dream of 20 years was almost realized - but not quite. Saturday's mortgage burning was the fulfillment of that dream.

IF YOU THINK you're confused, consider poor Columbus. He didn't know where he was going. When he got there, he didn't know where he was. And when he got back he didn't know where he'd been.

Some young men may become disenchanted with politics because of present unscroupulous government members, but with Sp. 4 Edward L. Fludd this is not the case.

Sp. Fludd, a member of H.H.C. 3d Bn., 60th Inf. at Fort Lewis, Washington, is very much interested in serving his country in the political arena. This young 22 year old soldier was born in Santee, S.C. where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fludd, brother Leon and sister Georgia Mae, still live.

Fludd graduated from high school in Holly Hill, S.C., attended Clafton College in Orangeburg, S.C., and Fort Steilacoom College in Tacoma, Washington where he received an associate degree. He has one year remaining toward a B.A. degree in political science.

Fludd started working toward his goal in the sixth grade when he joined the local 4-H chapter, an international youth organization whose name stands for health, hand, head and heart. In 4-H he completed many projects, among them public speaking and leadership. Leadership is very important to him. He tries to do everything to the best of his ability. His First Sgt., Sgt. Dixon says of Fludd that he is a "real, real, good man." His leadership ability helped him to obtain and hold the position of President of his 4-H chapter for six years. Chosen for his past record with the chapter, he was selected as one of five youths representing South Carolina at the national 4-H conference in Washington, D.C. The luncheon with Mrs. Richard Nixon and several senators was an occasion to be remembered. While at the conference Fludd delivered a talk on the importance of self-respect and leadership.

An outstanding soldier at Fort Lewis, he has received honors as Soldier of the Week, letters of commendation from Basic Battalion Commander and Brigade Commander, and was recently promoted to Sp. 4. Fludd feels his military training will help increase his progress in leadership and broaden his knowledge of people from every environment for his eventual return to South Carolina and politics.

Dear Tac Vac

by Ted Jefferson

Q--I am enrolled in college under the GI Bill for the entire school year. However, due to the energy crisis, our school has been closed and will remain so until the new term begins next month. Will the VA pay my GI Bill allowance for that period?

A--Yes, regulations were amended last month to provide for continued payment of educational benefits within a certified period of enrollment during which the school is closed by an order of of the President or for any emergency situation.

Q--The Military Survivor Benefit Plan has an irrevicable election provision, which means that after the deadline passes a retire cannot elect out. Doesn't this differ from the federal civil service survivor benefit plan?

A--No. The federal civil service survivor benefit plan has exactly the same provision. This allows a retiree to designate a second spouse if the first one predeceases him. The SBP annuity could therefore be paid to a surviving spouse.

Q--If a veteran cannot get a home loan through private lending agencies, how much of a direct loan can he get from the VA?

A--Effective Oct. 9, 1973, VA raised the direct loan to $25,000, the maximum possible under statitory authority. The previous amount was $21,000.

As a homebuyer, you will realize several advantages: the interest you pay is wholly wholly income-tax deductable; you will soon build an equity into the value of your home...making your net worth grow; your home is your castle...yours to live in, in your own individual style.

HUD doesn't sell houses, so please don't call HUD for details. All sales are made through professional Real Estate brokers. Almost all licensed Real Estate brokers have complete lists of homes available. They will be glad to help you find the home suitable for you, and to answer all your questions. Call one today. SPORTS SCENE

SPORTS RECORD BOOK

All Hail the New Kid

by Brian Jaybush

At the first game played by the new kid in town, there was a crowd of 12,132 on hand to observe the proceedings. The second time the new kid played, 12,463 showed up. That's 24,595 people cramming into a fairly small stadium that doesn't hold a lot more than 12,463 at ANY time.

As a comparison, the first two home games of the Seattle SuperSonics in 1967 attracted 9,036 fans. When the Pilots (the who?) were alive and kicking, their first two home games crammed Sicks' Stadium with a total of 23,360.

Who is this new kid and why is he so popular?

The "new kid" is a group of athletes from various places in the world who have gathered together in the Queen City, and call themselves the Seattle Sounders Soccer Club. As the name says,they play soccer--the most widely played sport in the world, but one strangely ignored in the United States. (It might be noted that the average attendance for the entire North American Soccer League last year was less than 12,000 per game.)

But then some strange things happened. Kyle Rote, Jr., who was the MVP in the North American Soccer League (or NASL, the league the Sounders are in), took first place in the All Around Athlete Contest sponsored by ABC-TV. In so doing, he defeated such greats from other, more accepted sports, as JohnHavlicek, Johnny Bench and Pete Rose. Suddenly soccer became a focus of attention.

And then the NASL announced it was going to expand--and created a whole gob of new teams, going from 9 last year to 15 this year --and one of those new teams was for Seattle. Suddenly local interest really perked.

So 12,132 curious people wandered out to Memorial Coliseum to see what soccer is. The home Sounders humiliated the visiting team from Denver, 4-0.

The 12,463 who showed up last Sunday to see the Sounders down San Jose 3-1 weren't curiosity seekers; nor, as a certain well known sports writer said earlier this week, were they soccer fans. They were hungry sports fans... hungered by seven years of SuperSonic promise (but no results), hungered by one year of major league baseball, hungered by promises (so far empty ones) from the National Football League and the National Hockey League. Hungry for good, solid, major-league sports.

The Sounders are major-league, even if it is a sport that hasn't been too well known so far. And off their first three performances, they look like a good, solid club.

It just could be that this soccer meal will be just what Seattle needed to satisfy its hunger. And possibly, when the NFL and NHL do deem to bless Seattle with their wares, Seattleites will be too gorged with the Sounders to worry about NFL/NHL scraps.

Fantastic Black Facts

by Rose Marie Johnson

----Continued from last week, The United Methodist Church and Race Relations

During 1970 the most significant events were once again the demonstrations of unity in which the Methodist Church participated.

In the U.S. minorities--ethnic groups, youth and others--constituted a major focus for United Methodist Church action. This was especially true at a special session of the denomination's General Conference in April which revised its priorities for 1971-72 to direct funds from on-going programs into new support for "self determination of minority people" and which seated youth delegates for the first time. The conference reduced annual funds appropriated to its agencies by $2 million and allocated this sum to the Commission on Religion and Race. It also raised goals for support of its black colleges to $4 million annually and approved $1 million a year in new scholarship and loan funds for minority students. Through the year there was a succession of developments concerning ethnic minorities, including some $2 million in loans to minority economic enterprises by the Board of Missions; a $1.3 million contract by the Board of Health and Welfare Ministries to train 700 "hard-core disadvantaged" for health-care careers; and $250,000 from Crusade Scholarships for deprived students at black colleges. The church had collected some $7 million for the four-year Fund for Reconciliation, launched in 1968, and allocated it to meet national and local needs of deprived or minority groups. Part of this also was appropriated for reconstruction and rehabilitation efforts in South Vietnam. Structurally, too, there were changes involving minorities. Two black annual conferences to reduce the remnant of the former segregated Central Jurisdiction from 17 (as of 1964) to 7.
